> This rich trio with associates are for the coming year arranging to do work which in an important sense will match the Clough work farther north and on the connecting group

> With the Swedes' return from Seattle and San Francisco they will have shipped a complement of machinery capable of penetrating in a double sense the mountain of fortune. M'GILL WHITE SLAVERS FACE LONG SENTENCES

It has been a long time since a ocal defendant has been so tightly caught in the clutches of Uncle Sam as Harry Loukas and William R. Jetter, who were yesterday convicted on six counts each of violating the white slavery law, says the Salt Lake Tribune. If United States Judge John A. Marshall imposes the maximum penalty each will be sentenced each fined $45,000; There were two indictments of six ounts each. Three counts in each indictment applied to persuading girls under age to go from one state to another for immoral purposes. The maximum penalty on each count is 10 years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000, either or both, in the discretion of the court. This would mean 30 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $30,000. The other Four oil tanks have been removed, three applied to girls of more than five years and $5000 on each count. Judge Marshall, however, has never imposed such severe penalties. The longest sentence on such an indictment here has been seven and a half years. It is only in exceptionally aggravated cases that to maximum is imposed by the United States judge in any part of the country. South garden sewers 55 per cent Uncle Sam's laws cover a multitude of instances in the sins for which he inflicts punishment.

A pathetic scene was enacted when the verdict was read. Jetter's aged mother clasped him in her arms and burst into tears. When the son tore himself away to accompany the deputy marshal, sobbing and swaying, she reeled from the court room.
